

Michigan Home Heating Assistance Guide:

2020-2021 heating season

No one should be without heat this winter. All residential customers are protected from service disconnection for nonpayment of a delinquent account, regardless of income, from Nov. 1 through April 15. This guide includes resources and programs that you may be able to use this winter.

Winter protection plan

If you are a senior citizen or income-qualified, you may be eligible for protection against service disconnection and high utility bill payments, as well as assistance with service reconnection during the winter months (Nov. 1 to March 31). Participation does not relieve you of the responsibility to pay for energy use. At the end of the protection period, customers participating in the plan must make arrangements to pay any money owed before the start of the next protection period.

Winter disconnection protection does not apply if you have been disconnected or have a pending disconnection for unauthorized use of utility service within the past two years at your current address until all charges are paid or payment arrangements are made.

Medical emergency protection

If you or a member of your household has a medical emergency or protective services emergency, you may postpone service disconnection up to 21 days. Your condition must be certified by a physician or public health office on a commission-approved Medical Certification form. The form must state the medical condition, medical equipment and specific time period a shutoff of utility service would make the medical condition worse. You will receive a three business-day grace period to provide the completed form.

Critical care customer shut-off protection

You may be eligible for protection against service disconnection as well as restoration of service if an interruption of service would be immediately life-threatening. After initial approval of a completed commission-approved Medical Certification form certifying your status as a critical care customer, continued eligibility requires that annually you provide the company with a new completed Medical Certification form certifying your continued status as a critical care customer. You will receive a grace period of three business days to provide the completed form.

Commission-approved Medical Certification form

You may contact the company for the commission-approved Medical Certification form or visit www.uppermichiganenergy.com/rates/w-umerc-medical-certification-form.pdf.

Active duty disconnection protection

If you or your spouse is called to full-time active military service during a time of declared national or state emergency or war, you may apply for electric disconnection protection.
